IMPORTANT DECISION AFFECT- ING OLD COLLEGE PROP- ERTY—OTHER COURT NEWS

The most important action in Circuit Court since the close of the I. J.'s last report was the judgment handed down by Judge Walker that the old College property in this city belongs to the county public schools of Lincoln county, and does not revert to the heirs of the former owners by whom it was given for school purposes. Suit was brought for a sale of the property, but Judge Walker holds that this is unauthorized and the property must be continued in use for school purposes. It is said to be probable that the case will be carried to the Court of Appeals to determine what are the rights of the City School Board in regard to control of the property or its use for school purposes.

A jury acquitted Tom Cooper, colored, of Hustonville, who was accused of attempting assault upon Dee Sweeney, a colored girl at that section. Cooper was defended by Attorney T. J. Hill.

It was the case against Thomas, charged with robbing Jim Jones, a colored man, near the Traylor distillery, that was transferred to Garrard county, and not against Tom Turpin, the latter having been a companion of Jones at the time of the robbery.

The trustees of the Stanford Graduate school were enjoined from collecting school taxes against the estate of the late John F. Cash for the year 1908, amounting to $85, on the ground that it did not appear that he had moved into the school district. An appeal was granted in this case.

Divorces were granted by Judge Walker in the following cases: Mary J. Culton from T. J. Culton, of the East End; Wallace Farmer from Annie Terry Farmer; W. D. Cox from Amanda Cox.

JUDGE DAWSON AND MR. EADS SAVE MAN FROM DROWNING

Judge W. L. Dawson, and his son-in-law E. D. Eads, spent a profitable Decoration Day at Crab Orchard Springs, for they undoubtedly saved the life of a stranger who fell in the lake, while they were fishing. The man had been sitting near the bank, when suddenly he seemed taken with a fit and fell headlong into the water. Judge Dawson and Mr. Eads went quickly to the rescue and dragged the man out. He was in a bad condition and they took him quickly to the hotel where he was attended by physicians. Judge Dawson was lead to believe that the man was a patient under treatment at Crab Orchard, who had become subject to spells of such a nature.

STANFORD DEFEATS LANCASTER BALL TEAM THIS SEASON

On Tuesday afternoon the Stanford High School baseball team went over to Lancaster to play a mixed team composed of Lancaster and Richmond men. Although the High School team was badly broken up on account of two of her regulars being out of the game, yet they returned home victors by the score of 6 to 4. The Lancaster team having been beaten twice this season by our boys, made special preparation to defeat them in the third game. Edwards and Braddus, two Richmond men composed the Lancaster battery. Edwards pitched masterly ball all the way, only allowing two hits, but the Stanford boys took advantage of all opportunities, and piled up a total of 6 scores which were too much for the Garrard men to overcome. The game was a good one, and was distinguished by many good plays, especially did Dozier keep up his reputation as a fielder by making one of the prettiest catches ever seen on the Lancaster diamond. Waters, a second Artie Hoffman, in the utility role, caught a splendid game, in fact, all the boys played the kind of game that has won so many games for them in the past.

Capt. Bill McCarty, who is a team leader of the local players, both in batting and on the field, got the two hits off Edwards. This boy plays a classy game of ball at first and will make good in the Blue Grass League sure. Score:

Bobbitt To Wed

IS REPORT WHICH CIRCULATING CONCERNING NOTED BARRISTER

Carried in vestments fit to grace the coronation of the King, and withal as lovely as the rose of Sharon, the "Cicero of the Mountains," Hon. Fontaine Fox Bobbitt, of Crab Orchard has been the cynosure of all eyes at the present term of court. The learned barrister of the East End of Lincoln, always conspicuous in any august assemblage, has attracted unusual attention and admiration at this session by reason of the Beau Brummelle figure which he cuts both when pleading his clients' causes in the court room, or when receiving the plaudits and good wishes of his friends in the corridors of Lincoln's stately edifice of justice or going to and fro from his apartments.

Why has this astute lawyer devoted so much thought to his garments; and why has a mind, accustomed to soaring in the clouds of rhetoric and flitting with the light of logic, been diverted from its empyrean ambulations to consideration of such a tawdry vestments? The I. J. has taken some pains to answer these queries which have been propounded on all sides and have so far gone unanswered. The solution is said to be that having conquered all worlds which lay before him in the law, the immortal Cicero is about to enter that greater forum, matrimony, and it is to please the sparkling eyes of a beautiful heiress that he has donned the garments of a Beau Brummelle and reports himself as becoming a true Chevalier. The I. J. is unable to learn the name of the fortunate young lady, but the affair is said to be rapidly approaching a happy consummation, and his brothers at the bar and friends in the humbler walks of life are tendering tentative congratulations to the prospective bridegroom.

PARKSVILLE

On next Sunday afternoon, the Macabee lodge, at Parksville, will hold their annual decoration services. The members are requested to be at the hall promptly at two o'clock to march to the cemetery. A most interesting program has been arranged and special invitation is extended to all members of other Macabee lodges to attend and participate in the exercises.

CORDIAL GREETING IN ROCKCASTLE

IS GIVEN I. J. FIELD MAN, WHO WRITES PERSONAL NOTES ON HIS JOURNEY.

We always experience a considerable elation of spirits when we are on our way to Brodhead, Ky. On the way, our spirits go higher still, on reaching that beautiful little city the elation is attained, and in the words of our strenuous, but popular and widely esteemed ex-provost, Teddy Roosevelt, we are delighted.

Leaving Crab Orchard Wednesday, we traveled over the old state road, a road of much interest to every Kentuckian as over this road the pioneers came who founded a state in the wilderness and helped to wrest an empire from the treacherous red man. While there are some pretty steep hills, it is a nice road for travel at this season of the year. Lots of nice, long, wide and level stretches of road, which for their smoothness, compare very well with a city boulevard. The road is good but noticeably better after crossing the line. In Rockcastle every able-bodied male in the road age must work the road six days and more if necessary.

We stopped and had a pleasant chat with Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Lucas. Mr. L. was busy shearing sheep but cheerily took time to talk to visitors. He has one sheep which is something out of the ordinary. While in every respect a sheep, its voice, horns and wool, (being hairy) resemble a goat. It is gentle and the playmate of the children.

Called on Mr. E. L. King and wife Mr. K. is the youngest son of the late Andrew King, and is a promising farmer of the East End. His brothers, A. V. Wilson; Wm. and Henry at Gum Sulphur, each owns a good farm and comfortable homes. Wilson King, it will be remembered, suffered a recent bereavement in the loss of his wife, who was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Roberts, of Hubble and was a most excellent lady. L. C. King, of Hubble, and George King, of Norman, Okla., are also brothers, and well-known to the writer. The King brothers are straight-forward, honest and industrious, and also inveterate readers of the I. J., some ten of the family being on our list. Mrs. G. W. Spangler being among the number.

Met A. J. Bailey who lives at the J. T. Roberts place. Is an affable gentleman and the stranger always receives a courteous welcome. Mr. B. is a staunch republican and after he found that was our favorite brand of politics, he became an immediate subscriber. We are under promise to return at an early date and pay him a visit.

Spent an hour or so at Gum Sulphur Met some nice people. Mr. J. T. Lawrence, who is well known in Lincoln, is running a general store and the post office in connection. He is also station agent. The people in this section think mighty well of Hon. Harvey Helm, whose efforts in their behalf, succeeded in re-establishing the post-office at this place, after it had been discontinued for some time.

Visited the water mill of Mr. J. C. Howard, and after seeing it at work, we had a notion to learn the miller's trade. His mill is brand new, being put up in 1909 by S. D. N. Anderson of Hagan, Va. The stones are hand cut, and the entire mill is the handiwork of a mountaineer who knew his trade thoroughly.

At Brodhead next day we ran across Mr. Leroy Robbins, who is an old acquaintance and friend. He had been quite ill the past winter, having had a severe spell of typhoid fever, which was followed by a backset of several months' duration, during which time he suffered all the tortures common to rheumatism and its attendant ills. He is now with his brother, John Robbins, and has fully recovered his health and is, in fact, a walking advertisement to the curative and recuperative powers of the Splitter Sanatorium at Crab Orchard. He is a perfect picture of health, and looks nothing like he did in September last when a bad-ridden victim of disease.

Made another very personal acquaintance in the person of Mr. J. E. Woodyard, aged 83, and the father of Mrs. Thos. Cherry. Mr. W. was born near Fork church in Garrard and is related to the celebrated surgeon in eye diseases, the late Dr. Burdette. He has a wide circle of friends in both Lincoln and Garrard.

Attended a singing at the Baptist church conducted by A. E. Albright and would be willing to put Brodhead against an equal class when it comes to singing. Large audiences out, and everyone taking a part in the music, showed plainly Brodhead folks can sing. We are told that several of the grown ups were attending a social, and the class was not as large as common, but what the class and youngsters lacked in size was made up in melody. One reason Brodhead excels in vocal music is there are so many good teachers who have a native talent.

Mr. D. F. Miller, a lumber dealer of Somerset, brings in a traction load of dimension stuff each morning from Walnut Grove, where his mills are located. His traction outfit is well arranged and is away ahead of horse drawn wagons. Ben V. Riddle is his engineer, and knows how to pull over the roads at a good rate of speed.

Hunted up our old friend W. H. Albright and soon put him on our list. He was a subscriber several years ago, but had for some reason, let his I. J. lapse, and kept putting off for a better time. Mr. A. tells us that he got his education from reading its pages after he came to manhood, and that school were few and far between in his boyhood days. Mr. A. is a staunch advocate of more and better educational facilities.

Both I. J. Smith and Jas W. Moore gave the I. J. man a hearty welcome. Mr. Moore asks after Ed Walton in particular; come to think of it there is considerable inquiry after that gentleman, who is repeatedly referred to as "a good newspaper man," "a hustler," or "A great hand-shaker and mixer." He has lots of friends in this place.

Made the acquaintance of W. A. B. Davis, of Mr. Vernon. Mr. Davis is now actively engaged in surveying but was once one of Rockcastle's foremost school teachers. His pupils are scattered over the country. We have made the acquaintance of several, all of whom speak in most complimentary terms of their former instructor.

The Wald post office in Rockcastle was named in his honor.

Brodhead is a live hustling little city of some 700 inhabitants, and is located in the West central part of the county on the L. & N. Railroad. Another road was recently surveyed which put Brodhead on its route; whether it will ever be built, remains to be seen. The entire population is white. Three good church buildings with large congregations, Baptist, Methodist and Christian. Brodhead has fine graded school building large, commodious, and sanitary, located in a nice level, three acre campus. Large attendance. This school is under the efficient management of an excellent faculty, composed of Miss Ida May Adams, Principal, Misses Carrie Frith and Nannie McWhorter and Mrs. O. A. Frith, primary and intermediate department teachers and Miss Margie McClary, instructor in music. This school is doing some fine work and the patrons have just cause to be proud of their school.

The Citizen's Bank located at this place, is doing a large business, with clever A. M. Hiatt, cashier, and the gentlemanly Hane Carson, assistant. The large roller mill of T. S. Frith has resumed operations, and with the saw and planing mills turnish employment to many hands. While the timber has been closely worked out, Brodhead still continues as a shipping point for considerable lumber, heading etc.

There are nine stores, and one drug store, each having a good trade. The latest entries in the mercantile arena are Henry Anderson and J. B. Farria, the former is a son of our friend, B. C. Anderson, and is an old Garrard county boy. Both stores doing well.

There is one barber shop here, conducted by Mr. C. A. Wheeler. He is such a good tonsorial artist that he has no opposition.

There post office building here is up-to-date, and has any and all of the nearby towns beaten a block. John Robbins, the obliging and courteous representative of Uncle Sam will hand out your mail. Miss Mattie Owens, the popular and talented daughter of Mrs. Serena Owens is the pleasant assistant.

The Rockcastle County Fair Association has its grounds located here. A lot of nice buildings, comparatively new, lots of good shade and good ice water furnished in plenty; in fact, everything to make the visitor enjoy himself. Good track, nice music and a variety of attractions put Brodhead in the front when it comes to a good clean, old-fashioned, country fair. Farming receives a new and stimulating impetus at each meet. Rockcastle farmers are sensible men and return to their homes resolved to raise more and better crops stocks, etc.

Then there is floral hall which must be seen to be appreciated. On the walls are exhibited a wonderful variety of needlework. Fruits and flowers in profusion. Endless displays of cookery, substantial and delicacies, fit to

CLOUDBURST PLAYS HAYOC IN WEST END

DELUGE OF WATER MONDAY EVENING DOES GREAT DAMAGE TO MANY FARMERS

A funnel shaped cloud poured out the overflow from the heavens upon a small space of Lincoln county about seven o'clock Monday night, and growing crops and fences were destroyed to the damage of several hundred dollars. Boulders heavier than a man can lift were carried down a small stream known as Frog Branch, in the west end of the county and deposited wherever the raging waters chanced to subside a trifle. A bridge near Moreland was swept away, and but for the lateness of the evening, and cattle and stock being generally feeding at barns, considerable damage would probably have resulted to stock.

The area included in the cloudburst seems to have been about five miles in length and about half a mile in width, and includes some of the richest farms in Lincoln county. People living miles away could see the approach of the storm clouds in the west end. They seemed a muddy yellow in color and were accompanied by terrific thundering and lightning flashes. Just at the moment the windows of heaven seemed to be let open, it appeared to onlookers miles away, and who were enjoying a slight sprinkle, that a heavy cloud rolled up from the south and met the bank of hunk in the skies which had come up from the west and north. The crash was heard as a fearful thunder clap and then the sheet of water descended upon the land.

Twenty-five rods of substantial rock fence and 75 rods of heavy rail fence were swept away like chaff off the farm of Farris Sandidge, living near Moreland. He had a large force of men all day thinning his young corn. After the deluge no one could tell what had been planted in the field. Near Adam Carpenter's place, ball stones as large as pigeon eggs were scooped up in buckets. Heavy rock was washed over the fields of W. D. Hanson, Ira Moses and George Gaddes, and much other damage is reported by farmers in that section from water and hail.

The farmers will feel the loss greatly as crops have already been retarded by the persistent drizzle.

HUBBLE

Grover McKeechine, returned from Louisvilleaturday where he had been to try to learn something of his brother Robert who so mysteriously disappeared some time ago.

A telegram from J. E. McKeechine, Portland, Ore., says, Robert is there. There many friends and relatives just learned of the secret marriage of Mr. James B. Sanders and Miss Suelia Jones, at Danville, by Rev. C. V. Cook, pastor of the Danville Baptist Church, Feb. 11th, 1911. Mr. Sanders is a brother to Mr. S. B. Sanders of this place and his bride is a daughter of Mr. W. M. Jones of Headville.

John W. Simpson, of Bronston, was here last week. He bought a yearling jack from Price Bros., of Garrard for $500.

T. C. Rankin spent a few days in Wayne last week.

Our school at this place will close Friday.

Uncle John Kingleman was moving some corn a few days ago and caught 38 mice and one large rat.

BEST—MURPHY

S. D. Murphy, a prominent Everyman of Moreland and Miss Lulu Best, drove to Danville, Wednesday afternoon and were united in marriage by Rev. H. Garrison. They returned to Moreland where they will make their home. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Best and one of the most attractive and charming young ladies of the West End. Both have many friends who are extending hearty congratulations and best wishes.

tempt the Gods and make a hungry man's mouth water in anticipation.

Fair week is known as a home coming week, and those of Rockcastle's sons and daughters who have gone to distant sections of the country and built homes, or those on trips of business or pleasure, return to have another happy time with the old folks, at home and to enjoy the hospitality for which Brodhead is so noted.

Providence not preventing, we hope to make a return trip and enjoy the big occasion to the fullest, meeting old friends and making new ones.
